Cargo Hub

PUJ Cargo Hub is a distribution center from South America to Europe, United States and Canada. The Hub includes infrastructural facilities, 433 m² of cold rooms with temperature from 0°C to 15°C for export. The Cargo Hub's products in transit are: flowers, fruits, vegetables, seafood, medical equipment, messaging, etc.

Be the main distribution center from South America to Europe, the United States and Canada. Use of empty spaces in bulk cargo hold. Import, export and transit of perishable, pharmaceutical products and flowers. Opportunity to import perishable products for hotels.

PreClearance

Preclearance allows for U.S. immigration, customs, and agriculture inspection processes and Transportation Security Agency (TSA)-equivalent aviation security screening, to occur on foreign soil prior to boarding a direct flight to the United States, without further U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) processing or TSA security screening upon arrival.

Passengers are cleared as they arrive at the airport. Originating passengers may arrive 2 to 3 hours before departure, while transfer passengers arrive up to the minimum connection time.

This creates self-metering of the passenger flow through the inspection process. More passengers are cleared with shorter wait times and fewer resources.

The Punta Cana International Airport will be one of the 18 airports around the world approved with this facility. Preclearance Operation is planning to start in March 2017 with an investment of $47M dollars.
